SHORT ANSWER

25. ANS:
- a) This is an example of response bias, since the awareness of their diagnosis may have caused them to change their response. It isn't non-response bias since they were able to obtain responses from the nurses and it isn't selection bias since they did not attempt to generalize to a larger population.
  - b) This is an example of non-response bias, since some of the children selected for the study were not able to participate after they died. It is not selection bias since the children were not left out on purpose and it isn't response bias since the researchers were unable to obtain responses in the first place.
